

MISCELLANY

Mother on the Brain.

The Petersburg Index says the writers of poetry and music during the war all ran after mother, and sang all the changes on filial affection and maternal love. Some wag, who never had a mother, and never expects to have one, has written a burlesque upon the productions of these motherly poets. We give his production, and at the same time sentence him for ninety days to the penitentiary—sentence to be suspended, upon condition that he will not attempt anything so cruel again:

As you look on the songs you see now-a-days,
The gentle words of mother will surely meet your gaze:
"Who will care for Mother now?" if I'm numbered with the slain;
"Oh! bless me, Mother, if I die," with Mother on the brain.
"Courage, Mother, I am going;" "Mother, I've come home to eat;"
"Just before the battle, Mother," I was lying in the street;
"I cannot call her Mother;" "The ring my Mother wore" was plain:
"Dear Mother, I've come home to die," with Mother on the brain.

"What is home without a Mother?" "It was my Mother's voice;"
"Sing me to sleep, Mother," I feel I'm growing worse;
"Be quiet, do, I'll call my Mother;" Mother's coming in the rain;
"Let me kiss him for his Mother;" with Mother on the brain.
"It was my Mother's custom;" "My gentle Mother dear;"
"I was my Mother's darling;" for I loved her lager beer.
"Kiss me, good night, Mother," and bring me a Bourbon plain;
"Mother, dear, I feel I'm dying," with Mother on the brain.

A WILD BEAST FIGHT.—At Saumur, (France,) there lately occurred a combat between a lion and a hyena in a menagerie, which is thus described:

The tamer was in a large cage with a lion and a hyena. After having made them go through several performances, he gave some meat, as usual, to the two animals, when suddenly the lion, animated by the smell of flesh, threw himself on the hyena, overturned him, and bit him in the neck. The savage instincts of the king of the desert manifested themselves immediately; the more the blood flowed, the more he seemed to be roused; and his sinister look inspired the most serious fears for M. Schmidt, the lion tamer. He did not, however, lose his courage for an instant. The first means which he employed were blows from a whip. A revolver was soon handed to him; with this, he discharged several shots at the lion, which did not in the least move him, as he still kept his victim between his teeth, and it appeared almost without life.

Great concern prevailed in the boxes; the women cried, and perhaps the uproar excited the lion. The employees of the menagerie assembled round the cage. They passed a drag hook at M. Schmidt, who made it penetrate the mouth of the lion, while some of them gave the animal repeated blows through the bars. The lion then yielded, and precipitated himself on the bars. M. Schmidt seized this opportunity to retire, dragging with him the hyena, into a neighboring cage. A door then separated them from the lion. It was time; for, already furious, he was approaching, and his mouth being covered with blood, dashed at the door. M. Schmidt showed himself to the spectators and received their congratulations, but he was pale and covered with blood. The hyena is grievously wounded, but will recover.

To the Citizens of South Carolina.

The termination of a sanguinary contest, which for the past four years has presented an impassable barrier to all social or commercial intercourse between the two great sections of our country, having at length happily cleared away all obstacles to a removal of those relations which formerly bound us together in a fraternal union, I take the earliest opportunity afforded me by this auspicious event, to greet my Southern friends, and to solicit from them a re-velal of that extensive business connection which for a quarter of a century has been uninterrupted, save by the great public calamity to which I have adverted.

It is scarcely necessary, on the threshold of a business re-union, I should repeat the warning so often given to my friends—to beware of all those spurious and deleterious compounds which, under the specious and false titles of Imported Wines, Brandy, Holland Gin, Liquors, &c., have been equally destructive to the health of our citizens as prejudicial to the interests of the legitimate importer.

Many years of my past life have been expended in an open and candid attempt to expose these wholesale frauds; no time nor expense has been spared to accomplish this salutary purpose, and to place before my friends and the public generally, at the lowest possible market price, and in such quantities as might suit their convenience, a truly genuine imported article.

Twenty-five years' business transactions with the largest and most respectable exporting houses in France and Great Britain have afforded me unsurpassed facilities for supplying our home market with Wines, Liquors and Liqueurs of the best and most approved brands in Europe, in addition to my own distillery in Holland for the manufacture of the "Schiedam Schnapps."

The latter, so long tested and approved by the medical faculties of the United States, West Indies and South America as an invaluable Therapeutic, a wholesome, pleasant and perfectly safe beverage in all climates and during all seasons, quickly excited the cupidity of the home manufacturers and vendors of a spurious article under the same name.

I trust that I have, after much toil and expense, surrounded all my importations with safeguards and directions which, with ordinary circumspection, will insure their delivery, as I receive them from Europe, to all my customers.

I would, however, recommend, in all cases where it is possible, that orders be sent direct to my Depot, 22 Beaver street, New York, or that purchases be made of my accredited agents.

In addition to a large stock of Wines, Brandy, &c., in wood, I have a considerable supply of old tried foreign Wines, embracing vintages of many past years, bottled up before the commencement of the war, which I can especially recommend to all connoisseurs of these rare luxuries.

In conclusion, I would specially call the attention of my Southern customers to the advantage to be derived by transmitting their orders without loss of time, or calling personally at the Depot, in order to insure the fulfillment of their favors from the present large and well selected assortment.
